

NEW ENGLAND
COLLEGE OF BUSINESS
AND FINANCE

JOHN MIN

Adjunct Professor, Finance Department

NECB Faculty Member since 2008

Education

Ph.D. in Economics (research focus on measuring and improving organizational productivity)

George Mason University

M.B.A. in International Business

B.A. in Political Science

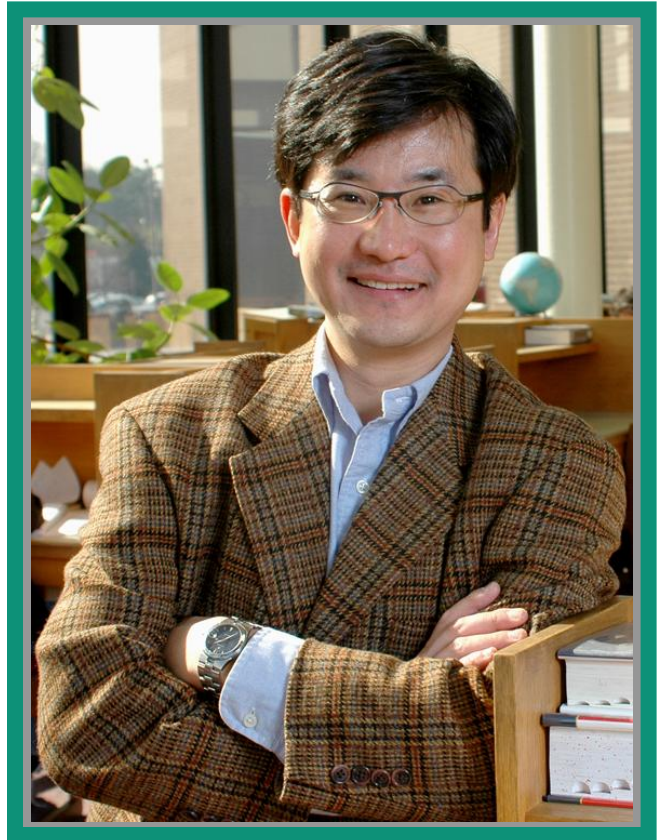

George Washington University

NECB Courses Taught

International Finance

Financial Economics

Investment Management and Securities Services

Notes

Dr. John Min has been teaching economics full time at Northern Virginia Community College since 1999 and MSF courses part time at NECB since 2008. Outside the College, John works as a development consultant to McGraw Hill Education, Kauffman Foundation, and Cengage Learning and helps them develop innovative curriculum materials in economics. John also works as a corporate consultant for companies such as JP Morgan Chase, Management Concepts, Western Union and AFEX. Prior to working as an education and sales consultant, John worked for Ruesch International, an international financial institution based in Washington D.C., as the vice president of U.S. sales. John also held a variety of positions within the company including director of sales strategy, general manager, market research analyst and sales consultant. Prior to joining Ruesch International, John worked for FETCO, an international commodity trading firm in Virginia, as a general manager. John also worked in various positions in finance for Bell South Corporation, Unisys, and Xerox Corporation.